About Molly

Molly started herding in California in 1989 after purchasing her first Aussie. With her experience in competitive equine events, her knowledge of livestock, and her training and trialing of numerous breeds of herding dogs, she has acquired a wealth of information on training stock dogs. Molly purchased her first Border Collie in 1991, and immediately started competing in United States Border Collie Handlers Association (USBCHA) field competitions. She found this venue to be very exciting and a true test for the breed.

When Molly moved to Arizona in 2000, there were not many field trials so she began to compete in AKC arena trials. While she expected this venue to be easy after competing in USBCHA trials for years, she was surprised to find it very challenging. On the first day of competition, she timed out on both cattle and sheep. The next day was much better with a High In Trial win in the Advance Class on sheep, ducks and cattle with her dog ,Murdoch.

Molly continues to compete in USBCHA field trials but I also compete in AHBA, ASCA and AKC, and believe the true test for a handler and dog is versatility. Molly works with her own dogs, and also trains and trials client dogs. She has worked with many breeds, including Border Collies, Australian Shepherds, Belgian Malinois, Belgian Tervuren, Belgian Sheep Dogs, Australian Cattle Dogs, Cardigan Welch Corgis, Pembroke Welsh Corgis, Bearded Collies, Shelties, Berger Picards and Rottweilers and German Shepherds. She enjoys the diversity of the herding breeds and applying her training methods differently, depending on both the breed and the temperament and drive of individual dogs.

Molly is an AKC, ASCA, AHBA and USBCHA Judge
